OVERVIEW OF THE HANDBOOK

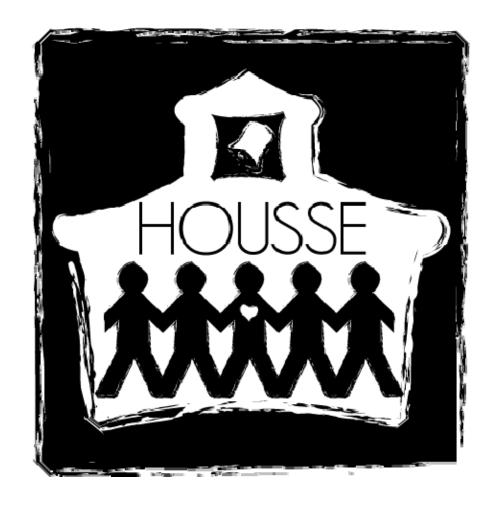

Statutory Authority for the Evaluation of Principals/Administrators in New Mexico

New Mexico statutes 22-10A-11(G) NMSA require the Public Education Department to adopt a highly objective uniform statewide standard of evaluation, which includes data sources linked to student achievement and an educational plan for student success (EPSS) progress, for level three-B school principals and assistant school principals that is linked to the leaders' level of responsibility at each school level along with rules for the implementation of the evaluation system.

In accordance with this law the New Mexico Highly Objective Uniform Statewide Standard of Evaluation for Principals and Assistant Principals (HOUSSE-P) was developed over a two-year period. The evaluation system represents the work of many dedicated stakeholders familiar with the unique context of New Mexico and its schools. All those involved in the design of the evaluation system expected that the system would be a reflection of the most recent research and knowledge about school leaders and leadership performance evaluation.

The HOUSSE-P Handbook is divided into three primary sections. The first section provides a short overview of the principal evaluation process followed by the New Mexico Principal Leadership Competencies and Indicators (NMPLCI). This section also presents the actual evaluation process with examples of evidence and data sources to assist users in the development of the Professional Development Plan (PDP), including all requirements and a definition of key terms. The second section includes each of the forms utilized for HOUSSE-P implementation. The third section overviews the background of HOUSSE-P and delineates the extensive work that several HOUSSE-P committees accomplished to include: an overview of the development process, statement of philosophy, and guiding principles.

Section three also includes the New Mexico Code of Ethics for the Education Profession [6.60.9.8 NMAC – N, 04-30-01].

Section I: Evaluation Process

Section I: EVALUATION PROCESS

This section of the Handbook provides an explanation of the process required for the evaluation of Principals and Assistant Principals. Please note that for the purposes of the Highly Objective Uniform Statewide Standard of Evaluation for principals and assistant principals (HOUSSE-P) Handbook the term "Principal" will be used to refer to both Principals and Assistant Principals. Key elements of the evaluation system include the evaluation timeline, the New Mexico Principal Leadership Competencies and Indicators (NMPLCI), the evaluation process and forms, examples of evidence and data sources, and guidance for the development of the Professional Development Plan (PDP), as well as the definition of key terms.

Evaluations are required every year of employment, but additional evaluations may be conducted at the discretion of the Principal's Supervisor or at the request of the Principal. The required evaluation process uses the NMPLCI as a basis for defining performance expectations for Principals. At the beginning of employment and continuing on a regular basis throughout the school year, the Principal and Supervisor should discuss each competency area and work toward a common understanding of the Supervisor's expectations for the Principal's performance on each competency. No later than October 15, 2008, each public school district and charter school shall adopt policies, guidelines, and procedures for annual principal and assistant principal performance evaluation that meets the requirements of rule 6.69.7 NMAC.

Principals are ultimately responsible for the accomplishment of school goals as stated in the school's Educational Plan for Student Success (EPSS). The Principal and the Supervisor should hold continuous discussions about district and school goals for supporting student success. Overall, the discussion should focus on the Principal's capacity to meet the performance expectations related to the NMPLCI and accomplish the school's EPSS goals.

New Mexico Principal Leadership Competencies and Indicators (NMPLCI)

All Principals in New Mexico are required to be proficient in four broad Domains:

Instructional Leadership, Communication, Professional Development, and Operations

Management. Proficiency in Domain Five – Scope of Responsibility in Secondary Schools, is required of secondary principals, serving middle and/or high schools. New Mexico Principal Leadership Competencies and Indicators (NMPLCI) on pages 8-9 list each domain with its accompanying competencies. Each competency is further described with a set of indicators. NMPLCI are presented as set forth in Public Education Department rule

[6.69.7 NMAC].

To assist Principals and Supervisors in preparing Professional Development Plans, each NMPLCI domain is broken down for each competency and indicator. Moreover, examples of evidence that could be used to assist in documenting a Principal's abilities vis-á-vis the indicators are provided on pages 10-17.

Examples of Data Sources

The Principal and the Supervisor should collaborate in the identification and collection of multiple types of data that can inform the self-reflection and evaluation process. Data should be collected periodically from important referent groups including faculty, staff, parents, students, and Supervisors. All data should be collected and analyzed for the purpose of understanding the Principal's abilities and growth trends in each competency area.

Data are an essential part of the evaluation process. As such, data must be collected and analyzed on an ongoing basis and must be referenced in the evaluation process. Data sources could include:

- Student Performance Data (e.g. SBA, Short Cycle, DIBELS, ACT, SAT)
- Self-Assessment
- Yearly District Site Visit
- Principal Classroom Visits
- National Standardized Tests
- Climate Surveys
- Teacher Surveys

Operational Framework of the New Mexico Highly Objective Uniform Statewide Standard of Evaluation for Principals and Assistant Principals (HOUSSE-P)

Part 1: SELF-ASSESSMENT-REQUIRED

The Self-Assessment (Form A) provides the basis for the Principal to reflect on individual strengths, needs, and growth for professional development. The Principal will use the New Mexico Principal Leadership Competencies and Indicators (NMPLCI) with Examples of Evidence (pages 10-17) in the development of the self-assessment.

Part 2: PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN-REQUIRED

The Professional Development Plan (PDP) (Form B) is based on the Principal's professional goals and strategies to accomplish them. The PDP is divided into two stages. Stage I should be completed no later than forty (40) days after the Principal commences his or her contract. Stage II takes place as a mid-year conference when progress on the PDP should be reviewed, discussed, and refined as appropriate. The PDP provides a format for the Principal and the Supervisor to discuss and then develop professional development goals. Each goal should be related to one or more of the Principal competencies and at least one EPSS goal. Strengths, focus areas, actions, assistance, resources needed, potential evidence of success, and projected timelines will be identified. The PDP contributes to the performance evaluation on the Summative Evaluation (Form D), which becomes part of the Principal's personnel file.

PDP Development

At the beginning of the school duties annually, the Principal and the Supervisor begin discussions about district and school EPSS goals. The discussion will address how the Principal will meet EPSS performance expectations, ensuring consistency with NMPLCI. The discussion will include the development of an action plan, identification of needed assistance and resources, timelines, and sources of performance data, as indicated on the PDP (Form B). During the year, the Supervisor conducts no fewer than two site visits to the school. These site visits include random classroom observations to assess the school as a whole and to determine instructional implementation aligned with district and school goals/initiatives.

Best Practices

- Throughout the evaluation process, formative dialogues between the Supervisor and the Principal take place as identified on the PDP (Form B).
- The Supervisor provides information and feedback to the Principal to guide the school improvement planning processes.
- The Principal conducts regular classroom visits using a type of classroom observation rubric to gather data regarding instruction and reviews the data for instructional and programmatic trends.

PDP Mid Year Review

At the mid-year, a conference shall be held between the Principal and Supervisor to assess progress on the PDP.

Best Practice

Principals seek input from groups such as faculty, staff, parents, and students about their performance and the success of their school.

Part 3: SELF-REFLECTION ON THE PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN-REQURIED

Before the Summative Evaluation (Form D) is written, the Principal completes the Self-Reflection (Form C, wherein they provide a self-assessment of the progress they made in meeting the goals set in the Professional Development Plan as well as a consideration of other strategies they might use if given the opportunity to continue.

Part 4: SUMMATIVE EVALUATION-REQUIRED

At the end of the school year, the Principal and the Supervisor meet to review evidence of completion of the PDP. The following documents of the summative evaluation process are included in the Principal's personnel file:

- PDP (Form B);
- Self-Reflection on PDP (Form C); and
- Summative Evaluation (Form D).

Definition of Terms

Accountability Literacy: Competence in a number of areas, including the ability to interpret data; to negotiate support for education in political, professional, and community settings; and to understand what data can and cannot tell about students. This in-depth understanding about appropriate data use goes beyond the ability to use technology tools; it requires capturing and organizing evidence as well as transforming the information into meaningful actions.

Competency: The performance expectations of a Principal. They are job related expectations that can be assessed and are based on research of effective leadership practice. Given the continually expanding knowledge base, competencies should be reviewed every five to six years.

Domain: Broad leadership areas.

Examples of Evidence: Observations and other data. Examples are provided to enable decisions about the performance of an indicator.

Evaluation Process: The steps involved from the beginning of each school year through the end and from one year to the next whereby the Principal and the Supervisor work together to consider evaluation evidence and use it to plan for and support the Principal's professional growth. The evaluation process for Principals includes:

- a self assessment step for all Principals that informs an annual Professional Development Plan;
- a developmental step to establish and refine a Professional Development Plan based on an ongoing process of documentation and conferencing throughout the school year;
- a reflection step for the Principal to consider his or her success in implementing the Professional Development Plan; and
- a summative evaluation step based on assessment of evidence collected throughout the school year and ending with a final conference and completion of the Summative Evaluation form.

Evaluation System: A comprehensive set of principles, definitions, competencies, indicators, varieties of evidence, and procedures that provide a means of using evidence of performance to guide professional growth.

Indicators: Descriptions of the standards of performance or competencies for New Mexico Principals. They represent specific behaviors associated with the competencies.

Principal: In the HOUSSE-P Handbook, the term Principal refers to both the principal and assistant principal.

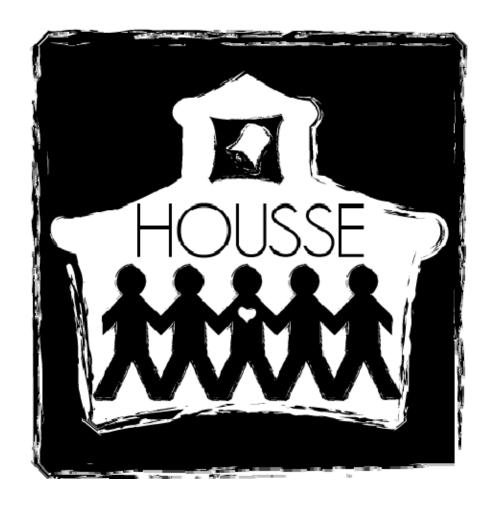

Professional Development Plan (PDP): The annual written agreement established no later than forty (40) days after the beginning of the Principal's contract each school year. The PDP has measurable objectives for performance evaluation based on the New Mexico Principal Leadership Competencies and Indicators (NMPLCI), as well as at least one EPSS goal.

Self-Assessment: The annual self evaluation written by the Principal assessing his or her strengths and needs for professional growth on the NMPLCI.

Self-Reflection: The annual self appraisal written by the Principal assessing his or her success in meeting the objectives set forth in the Professional Development Plan (PDP) submitted to the Supervisor prior to the completion of the Summative Evaluation.

Supervisor: District personnel responsible for the evaluation process of the Principal.

Summative Evaluation: A final comprehensive review of the Principal's progress based on evidence and documentation to include the PDP and the Self-Reflection. Performance is documented on the Summative Evaluation Form.

BACKGROUND

This section consists of the foundation for HOUSSE-P with the extensive work that the diverse HOUSSE-P committees accomplished to include: an overview of the developmental process, statement of philosophy, and guiding principles. The section also includes the New Mexico Code of Ethics of the Education Profession, which served as a touchstone for the HOUSSE-P committees.

Overview of the Process Used to Develop the Highly Objective Uniform Statewide Standard of Evaluation for Principals and Assistant Principals

Beginning in the spring of 2006, the New Mexico State Department of Education convened a series of design teams and work groups, consisting of a diverse set of educational stakeholders, to develop the HOUSSE-P.

The 2006 Spring Design Team I was responsible for the development of the statewide evaluation system. The design team was able to:

- review literature on effective leadership and evaluation;
- develop a statement of philosophy concerning the evaluation of Principals in the state of New Mexico;
- develop a set of guiding principles for the implementation of the HOUSSE-P;
- design a graphic framework;
- review and make recommendations concerning the revision and use of New Mexico's Administrative Competencies;
- review and discuss evaluation systems used in the State of New Mexico; and
- design a process for developing the HOUSSE-P.

During the 2006-2007 school year two additional teams were developed. The teams were identified as the Competency Team and the Design Team II.

The Competency Team was charged with developing the leadership competencies that would be used in the statewide evaluation system. This contingent:

- reviewed literature on effective leadership practice;
- reviewed national standards, as well as the standards of other states;
- developed a set of Principal leadership competencies; and
- developed indicators and evidence for each competency area.

The Design Team II was charged with developing the system itself, based on the recommendations and foundational work of the 2006 Spring Design Team I. They were responsible for:

- reviewing the evaluation systems of several states and large school districts;
- reviewing New Mexico's Three-Tiered Licensure Performance Evaluation System for teachers;
- developing a highly objective uniform statewide standard of evaluation; and
- developing a handbook to facilitate the implementation of the evaluation system.

During the summer and fall of 2007 the following accomplishments took place:

- development of the Summer Leadership Academy 2007, during which practitioners were given an initial training on the Handbook for the HOUSSE-P and were able to respond to the work of the Competency and Design Teams;
- development of the Secondary Scope of Responsibility competency to address New Mexico House Bill 35;
- implementation of the Fall Regional Trainings, another avenue where practitioners were able to give feedback on the work of the Competency and Design Teams;
- review of all feedback obtained; and
- revisions of the HOUSSE-P Handbook.

Statement of Philosophy Concerning the Evaluation of Principals and Assistant Principals in the State of New Mexico

The primary purpose of this statewide evaluation system is to enhance the performance of Principals and Assistant Principals. In establishing this evaluation framework, research shows that the school leader has tremendous impact on student success and the school environment. The state of New Mexico is committed to providing a quality educational program for all students. An effective performance-based evaluation system that supports professional development is essential to accomplishing this goal. The evaluation system will also provide information for appropriate personnel employment decisions.

An effective performance-based evaluation system requires commitment by leaders in the school district, and at the state level (including legislators) to provide the time and resources necessary for implementation. Ongoing professional development to support both the implementation process and the Principal's goals needs to be an integral part. The HOUSSE-P also requires alignment of this system with other relevant state level systems, such as leadership recruitment, preparation, licensure, induction, and teacher evaluation. With these multiple types of alignments, the evaluation systems will make a positive difference for the education of students in New Mexico.

The HOUSSE-P for Principals and Assistant Principals will be a collaborative, continuous process of formative and summative activities designed to measure proficiency on the New Mexico Principal Leadership Competencies and Indicators (NMPLCI) and to foster continuous professional growth. The components of the process are (a) the identification competency-driven performance goals, (b) documentation and conferencing about performance, and (c) participation in professional development to enhance performance. These activities will be implemented consistently statewide in order to guide decision regarding employment, while promoting objectivity, fairness, and a climate of respect, professionalism, and mutual trust among all educators.

Guiding Principles

The following guiding principles are presented as reminders to school district personnel as they begin implementing the statewide evaluation system.

- Whereas evaluation may be cyclical, professional growth is ongoing and continuous.
- Growth occurs in a collaborative culture where professionals learn and grow together.
- Various levels of experience and job responsibilities require differing levels of support by others.
- The self-reflective practitioner is knowledgeable of and proficient in gathering and analyzing multiple kinds of evidence of success.
- Ownership of one's individual growth plan produces best results.
- Trust is a foundational piece that is essential to authentic growth.
- Performance assessment should reinforce the significant role of learning in the school.
- Educational leaders must demonstrate competence as the instructional leaders of the school.
- The evaluation process should be consistent with the school improvement process.
- Honest communication and interpersonal skills are essential to professional improvement.
- Principals must provide the leadership for collaborative discussions that establish goals and objectives.
- The evaluation process should be flexible enough to account for the varying complexities of the Principal's role.
- Performance evaluation should affirm the value of the Principal's role as the key school-level leader.

To effectively implement these evaluation principles, the system should be based upon established standards of leader performance:

- use multiple measures to assess performance;
- use knowledgeable and fair decision-makers as evaluators;
- provide data for reflection and growth;
- focus upon a limited number of professional goals;
- foster self-diagnosis, self-reflection, and self correction;
- be flexible enough to account for the varying complexities of the role, and
- acknowledge the various career stages of the principalship.

The HOUSSE-P adheres to the principles of the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession. [6.60.9.8 NMAC – N, 04-30-01]
